Officer will also occasionally provide emergency assistance to other local law enforcement agencies.

FACTORS

1. Knowledge Required by the Position

Basic knowledge of, or ability to learn, and to develop basic knowledge of law enforcement and general administrative methods and techniques which help provide a foundation for understanding the objectives of the refuge law enforcement program, the basic concepts of conservation, and the objectives of the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service and the Refuge system.

Communicate and interact with others in a professional manner in carrying out basic assignments and in completing training.

Knowledge of basic law enforcement activities, and the ability to learn and apply a range of the techniques, methods, and procedures used in the law enforcement operations of the refuge.

Ability to successfully complete prescribed training classes, including the Land Management Law Enforcement Course at the Federal Law Enforcement Training Center (FLETC) or equivalent training, Refuge Officer Basic School (ROBS), and to obtain a commission as a Service law enforcement officer. Skill in the use of firearms, self-defense techniques, prisoner control methods, electronic surveillance and intrusion detection devices, and radios.

Skill to operate motor vehicles and specialized craft. Must have or be able to obtain and maintain a valid motor vehicle operator's license.

Skill in the use of computer systems, word processing equipment, and special purpose software.

2. Supervisory Controls

As a basic trainee, the supervisor or other higher-level or more experienced employee may provide technical direction for training purposes including specific tasks and detailed instructions on the use of selected methods, procedures, and techniques to be used for each assignment. Work is typically closely reviewed in progress and upon completion and assistance is available from a more experienced employee when original instructions or guidelines prove inadequate. Review is for technical adequacy, completeness, compliance with instructions and for indications that the employee has the capability to perform more difficult and more responsible assignments. Work assignments of a type that the employee has not yet performed are usually subject to the greatest degree of review.

3. Guidelines

The trainee receives specific, detailed, instructional materials and oral instructions covering law enforcement and administrative principles, policies, laws and regulations, techniques, work processes, and procedures. The guidelines, as supplemented by instructions/directions, are typically directly applicable to assignments, and work is normally performed in accordance with the guidance received. Some limited judgment may be exercised such as making decisions on the location of areas to be patrolled within a limited set of choices or the sequence of patrols.

4. Complexity

The assignments consist of a variety of specific tasks or duties, which provide an orientation to refuge law enforcement work, including the various principles, policies, techniques, procedures, etc. Typically, the tasks involve routine and limited assignments performed individually or by assisting an experienced law enforcement officer in the performance of tasks/parts of more difficult assignments for training purposes.

5. Scope and Effect

The purpose of the work, at this level, is to orient the trainee refuge law enforcement officer through a developmental program to the practical application of classroom instructions and to the performance of law enforcement. The effect of the work assignments is to accomplish limited assignments within the law enforcement program at an assigned site, either individually or through assistance given to more experienced refuge law enforcement officers.

6. Personal Contacts

The employee primarily has daily contacts with visitors, co-workers, refuge neighbors, and other members of the public. The contacts may occasionally include attorneys, judges, and personnel from other Federal agencies and State and local law enforcement and emergency service organizations. With respect to visitors to and neighbors of the refuge, the employee's contacts include people who represent a cross section of the nation and of many other countries of the world. Visitors are of all ages, and are from all social, ethnic, and economic groupings. Most visitors and refuge neighbors can be expected to be law abiding citizens; however, visitors also include individuals who violate the laws, rules, and regulations of the refuge and some individuals who have a history of previous convictions for serious criminal offenses.

7. Purpose of Contacts

Assignments require collaboration with Service resource managers and a variety of other Federal, State, and local law enforcement agencies whose goals are generally compatible but occasionally require special efforts to reconcile differing viewpoints and demands. Contacts with Service land users and visitors are to enforce laws and regulations governing the use of Service lands, to inform them of the cultural and natural resources on Service lands, and to ensure regulatory compliance. Contacts with private organizations, groups, and individuals are made to exchange information and to stimulate active support of law enforcement efforts, to investigate criminal activity and violations, and to apprehend suspects and violators. Contacts to detect and curtail criminal activity are often dangerous; people encountered are sometimes verbally and/or physically hostile.

8. Physical Demands

The employee's work regularly includes long periods of standing, hiking and/or climbing, in many cases on uneven, steep, rough, slippery, and/or rugged terrain. Operation of a variety of land and watercraft over extended periods of time is required. The duties require frequent or immediate strenuous exertion in law enforcement, firefighting, search and rescue, and related emergency activities. Lifting or carrying equipment weighing over 50 pounds may be required.

Duties involve performing physically rigorous assignments, often in isolated outdoor environments on land, water, and in the air. The employee is frequently exposed to severe weather conditions. Dangerous persons must be physically confronted, subdued, and apprehended; many of whom are known to carry weapons. Prisoners must be kept under physical restraint during transport and processing. The above activities are subject to the need to be carried out without regard to fixed work schedules, scheduled off-duty days, or opportunities for proper rest or nutrition. As more responsible assignments are received there is a high-stress component to much of the work.

9. Work Environment

While a significant amount of work is performed in an office setting, most of the work is performed outdoors in all kinds of weather and climatic conditions on land and/or on the water. The work is performed at various hours of the day and night and for prolonged periods during emergency situations. The employee is subject to frequent exposure to high-risk and potentially dangerous situations in law enforcement and emergency types of situations requiring use of a wide-range of personal protective gear (some of which may be uncomfortable, hot, or inconvenient to wear), adherence to specific safety procedures, and other precautions.

Long periods of surveillance work may be required in cramped or unpleasant locations and under unpleasant conditions. Subject to the possibility of being frequently assigned variable work schedules, including shift work.

Exposed to potentially dangerous situations, such as accidents while operating motor vehicles of various types; flying as a passenger in small fixed wing or rotary wing aircraft; and/or operating and/or riding in small watercraft.

Emergency law enforcement operations will require entry into hazardous environments, exposure to dangerous persons, animals, and substances, and potential exposure to infectious diseases. Follows Service and Departmental safety policies, wearing protective clothing and using appropriate protective and/or safety devices to reduce or eliminate exposure to dangerous situations.
